

The “Association québécoise des centres d’intervention en dépendance” (AQCID) is a national association regrouping more than hundred community and private organizations working in addiction. The AQCID is committed to be an interlocutor and a partner of the public network for services delivery in addiction to the population and to offer high quality services.

---