

The AQCID establishes partnership relations principally as form of collaborations. By this type of partnership, the association wishes to work with actors of the network to develop a comprehensive understanding of reality and needs of the population affected from a way or another by addiction. This is why this partnership implies places of exchange and influence on practices, problems identification and values underlying them.

AQCID's partnership relations lie on following values and guidelines:

- Health, well-being of population and citizens' right are central to our concerns.
- The partnership relation respects three principles: respect, transparency and commitment.
